

M'KINNEY'S COUPON WON ANOTHER RACE

DEFEATS HIS FIELD AT THE STATE FAIR.

Time the Fastest Made By a Wisconsin Bred Two-Year-Old—G. W. Howe Has a Walkover—Hot Contest Between Horses That Will Be Here Next Week.

Once more H. D. McKinney's trim little two year old, Coupon has trotted under the wire ahead of his field and won money and honors for the man who owns and trains him. He won the purse for his age at the state fair yesterday and his time in the second heat 2:26 1/2, is the best yet made by a Wisconsin bred two-year-old.

Coupon drew the pole in the first heat of the first race, the two-year-old three minute trot. In the pool selling Monday night Coupon was a favorite at $10 with Binawick second choice. The McKinney colt had no trouble in taking the heat, leading all the way and slowing up a furlong from the wire to allow the others to get within hearing distance. Binawick, the colt that had given Coupon hard races in recent meetings, was second all the way around and finished five lengths back of Wisconsin's champion 2-year-old. Mediumwood was third, a length behind Binawick. The time was slower than was expected. In the second and last heat Coupon was sent at a fast clip all the way and made the mile in 2:26 1/2, which stands as the record for Wisconsin bred 2-year-olds. Couldn't catch Coupon.

Bay B. attempted to keep close to Coupon at the start, but the pace was too fast and she left her feet at the three-quarters. At the half Binawick left the others and moved up to within three lengths of Coupon, where he remained until the judges' stand was passed. The others were well scattered within ten lengths of the winner. Coupon won first money, Binawick second, Mediumwood third and Bay B. and Red Gamaleon divided fourth money. As all of them are entered here next week the summary is of interest:

First race 2-year-old, three minute trot, purse of $500.
Coupon, b. c. by Director Chief (H. D. McKinney)..... 1
Binawick, b. c. by Decatur (A. E. Kimberley)..... 2
Mediumwood, b. c. by Burewood (Oaklawn Stock Farm)..... 3
Red Gamaleon, b. c. by Gamaleon..... 4
Bay B., b. c. by Syndic (G. W. West)..... 4
Time—2:26 1/2, 2:26 1/2.

Mr. McKinney's other colt, George W. Howe, had a walk over in the Wisconsin Futurity. His owner simply jogged him around the track in 3:07 1/2. The horse is by King William L. and has a record of 2:25.

Hot Race for 2:40 Pacers.

The 2:40 pacing race, in which the same horses will meet here next week was a surprise, it being won by Palmetto who defeated the favorite, Badge. The best time was 2:12 1/2, which is remarkably fast for a 2:40 class. The contestants were Palmetto who won the second, third and fifth heats and first money, Badge, who won the first and fourth heats and second money, Spynaxetta, who won third money. Maybill who got fourth money and Little Johnny who did not get a place. These horses are all entered here, and things may be different when they get on the Janesville course.

Baron Dillon, Allie Gee, Baron Rogers, Woodlark, Zero and Esperanza, all of whom are entered here next week, met in the 2:27 class contest at Milwaukee yesterday, the money going to Baron Dillon in straight heats, the best time being 2:18 1/2. Today's card includes the three-year-old in which H. D. McKinney has George W. Howe; the 2:19 pacing class in which John C. Chadwick has Boovee K.; the 2:19 trot in which E. W. Sherman has Virginus; and the 2:40 trot in which Mr. McKinney has King William L.

BELOIT'S POLITICAL POET WRITES

"Hogan's One Boss Shay" The Subject of His Rhyming.

A Beloit poet sends the following to the Free Press:

Hogan's "One Boss Shay,"
Did you hear of the wonderful Janesville
Billion such an illogical plan,
Who served as sheriff two years and a day,
And then of a sudden, he—Ah, but stay
I'll tell you what happened, without delay.
He started the people into fits.
Frightened others out of their wits—
Have you ever heard of Hogan, say?
Eighteen hundred and ninety-four,
Hogan's ideas began to soar,
And he sought to be sheriff one term
more.
This is the year in Janesville town,
That the earth will open and gulp him
down,
And Hogan's army be done so brown,
Left without a scalp to its crown.
T will be on terrible election day
That Hogan will find the dice to pay.
Now in fixing up politics, I tell you what,
There is always, somewhere, a weakest
spot—
And Hogan's thousand dollar bill
Which he said he'd throw into the till,
Will surely ask poor Johnnie ill.
And that's the reason, beyond a doubt,
That in Rock county and round about
"Will" Appleby's forces have grown so
stout,
For a thousand dollars won't buy them out.

C. S. JACKMAN NOT LIKELY TO SUE.

Says His Father Never Had a Title to the High School Lot.

It was said about town today that C. S. Jackman was preparing to commence action to compel the city to vacate the lot occupied by the present high school under the terms of the agreement in the deed given by his father that it should be used for a high school site, and when not so used resort to the original owners. Mr. Jackman was seen this morning and said:

"My father never held a title to that property, consequently I would not have much chance to bring such a suit. I have heard, however, that an effort will be made to have the county take steps to secure a state normal school here, and as an inducement the high school site is named as a bonus."

PALMER SNUBBED MORRIS.

Democratic Nominee Withdraw Without Telling Engineers of the Machine.

Postmaster Frank Morris of Milton was in the city a short time today. Morris, besides being postmaster, is chairman of the democratic county committee, and finds plenty of time between mail arrivals to pour oil on the political machine, but now and then a break occurs.

"Palmer, I see by the Gazette, declines to run for county superintendent," said Mr. Morris. "He never said a word to me about it after being nominated. He wanted the nomination, and came to me before the convention, asking for it. I told him I would try to get him nominated. So under the circumstances, I think he ought to have sent the letter to me. However I think it just as well for him."

MANY REASONS FOR THE VOTE

People, As a Rule, Say It Was Their Voice.

There are many reasons given for the sweeping high license victory yesterday, many insisting that it was a fair expression and that people outside the saloon influence appear to be of the opinion that the result is their voice. The saloon men themselves appear to take the result as a matter of fact, and the most of them claim it was just as they expected. Alderman Cunningham said:

"The result is with the people, while the three hundred dollars additional license is charged up to the saloon keepers."

MR. MINER REFUSES A RE-ELECTION

No Longer Wishes the Treasurership of the State Society.

W. K. Doyan, the Madison banker, will succeed Hon. Cyrus Miner of this city as secretary of the State Agricultural society, Mr. Miner stating that he would under no circumstances be a candidate, and for this reason, among others, Mr. Doyan consented to allow the use of his name. There will probably be no other, and his election is therefore almost certain. He has been Mr. Miner's assistant treasurer for years and is considered to be eminently fitted for the office.

CIDER CAUSES FIGHT AND FINE

Bartley Fanning Pays $19.00 For Punching Michael Joyce's Head.

Bartley Fanning of Johnstown was in the municipal court this morning, charged with an assault on Michael Joyce. Fanning it appears, went to Joyce's to get some cider. Joyce thinking that Fanning was heavily loaded, told him that he appeared to have enough and could not get any more. Fanning got mad, and it is said pitched into Joyce with the intention of making his body into pumice. He pleaded guilty before Judge Phelps, and received a fine of $10 and costs, all amounting to $19.00, which was paid.

AT THE ALTAR THEY WERE WED

Pierson—Carlson.

Frank F. Pierson, the well known and popular gunsmith and Miss Minnie Carlson were united in the holy bonds of matrimony last evening at the home of the bride on North Main street, Rev. A. H. Barrington, rector of Christ church officiating. The ceremony was unostentatious only the immediate relatives being present. After an elaborate wedding feast had been served Mr. and Mrs. Pierson took the 9:30 vestibule train for the north, and after a visit to St. Paul, the Dells and other places of interest they will return to Janesville to reside. Both contracting parties are too well known to need any introduction to Janesville people and many friends of both will wish them happiness and prosperity.

Anti-Tillmanites Fail to Nominate.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Sept. 19.—The anti-Tillmanite convention adjourned early yesterday morning without making any nominations. The state convention meets to-day, and John Gary Evans will be its nominee for governor. The convention will, in all probability, again adopt the Ocala platform. That there will be two tickets, both claiming to be democratic, is almost certain.

Thirtieth Indiana Cavalry.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 19.—Survivors of the Thirtieth Indiana cavalry had their ninth annual reunion yesterday. There were 150 members present.

Another Body Found in the Debris.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—All day yesterday searchers worked among the ruins of the Stamp Bros' mattress factory fire in the hope of finding the bodies of those missing. Last night at 6 o'clock another male corpse was discovered. This increases the total number of dead to six. Still another body is believed to be in the debris.

BUTLER IS IN JAIL FOR A BAD OFFENSE

ANOTHER BELOIT ASSAULTER
BEHIND THE BARS.

He Was Supposed to Be the Ringleader of the Ferrin Case Gang and Had Eluded Arrest—Boy Bicycle Thieves May Get a Pardon From the Governor.

Durbin Butler, who was said to be the ringleader of the gang who made a brutal assault on Miss Esther Ferrin of Shopiere, is in jail and will stay there six months, as the penalty of his crime. Butler is from Beloit and was arrested by Marshal Appleby who has been watching for him some time. Butler had succeeded in keeping out of sight for some days, but the first time he showed himself the marshal got him. He pleaded guilty before Justice Pierce and was sentenced to six months, the full penalty. Alexander, the first man convicted of crime, has paid his fine and is now at liberty. His sentence was $35 and costs or ninety days. Three of the gang are now in jail, they being Bundy, Brederson and Butler.

Boys May Be Pardoned.

Roy Mosher and Walter Gibbeant, the two boys who are in jail for stealing bicycles are likely to be pardoned by the governor. The two hail from Beloit and a petition asking for executive clemency for them was liberally signed by Line City people. Sheriff Bear also interceded for them and the governor took the petition under advisement for one week, which time is up today. The boys were brought to jail August 20, on a six months' sentence, so they have served two months of their time. This was their first offense and their reputations had been good previous to the present trouble. The Sunday school workers in the Line City were especially active in working for the boys.

Did Not Steal Grass.

District Attorney Wheeler has dismissed the case of the state against R. J. Hartsborn and William Lambert, two Beloit men who were charged with stealing hay. No one appearing against them. They claimed that they were maliciously charged with stealing grass from land formerly belonging to the Slater farm, situated on the bank of Rock river. The land they said was purchased by the Beloit Water Power company who paid Mr. Slater $1,000 for same and now controlled it. Further they said the case was dismissed because District Attorney Wheeler did not consider the case against them worthy of attention.

"RED" DELANEY BOBS UP AGAIN

Janesville Man Shows Up After a Long Absence From Town.

"Red" Delaney, who has been giving Janesville a wide berth since he was sent to the penitentiary for stealing a keg of beer, came to town last night and acquired a large load of liquor which prevented him, in the language of his kind, "from hauling his freight properly," or in other words he was too drunk to walk a crack. Chief Acheson helped him to jail and he will probably be provided with railroad transportation if he isn't kept in jail.

DARB GRIFFIN'S NOVEL SENTENCE

Municipal Judge Phelps Sends Him "To the Tobacco Field."

"I sentence you to hard labor in the tobacco field," said Judge Phelps this afternoon, addressing John Griffin, who will be better known by the name of "Darb" Griffin was arrested yesterday by Patrolman Hogan, and was confronted this afternoon with a charge of drunk and disorderly conduct. He promised the judge that he would go immediately to the field.

C. T. WILCOX THE FIRST TO PAY UP

Got the First Receipt for River Street Paving Costs.

Charles T. Wilcox was the first man to pay his share of the expense of the paving of South River street, into the city treasury. His share amounted to $122.54 and he exhibited City Clerk Bates' receipt today with a good deal of satisfaction.

"They say I opposed this paving," he said, "but I notice that I was the first one to pay up."

HOMER ROSENCRANS, Samuel Beck and Fred Radcliffe, the three Oconowoc boys who started for New Orleans in a birch bark canoe, arrived in Janesville this morning and were taken in hand by the police. They will be taken home by the sheriff, as their parents are much distressed about them. They started on their trip without saying a word to anyone about it and their sudden leave taking had the result of bringing young Rosenkrans' father, O. L. Rosenkrans, to Janesville in a hurry to head them off.

JOHN V. NORCROSS, of this city, and Fred E. Norcross, of Chicago, were partners at the wedding of Miss Louise Holmes, of Beloit, and Edward C. Risher of Chicago, which occurred in the college chapel at Beloit last evening. The affair was a brilliant one.

Diver Pahlberg of New London, Conn., found a ring owned by Mr. Webb of New York city, in twenty-five feet of water recently. Webb was yachting when the ring fell overboard, and that the diver recovered it seems almost wonderful.

The forest land owned by the state is in Germany thirty-three per cent of all forests, in Scandinavia fifteen to twenty, in France ten, in Switzerland four, and in Italy not two.

NAVAL FIGHT COSTS BOTH SIDES DEAR

CHINESE AND JAPANESE VESSELS
BOTH GO DOWN.

Former Lost Two By Fire and Two Foundered, While the Japs Also Had Four Go to the Bottom—The Prisoners Who Could Walk Paraded.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 19.—In yesterday's naval battle the Chinese lost two warships by fire and two were sunk. The Japanese also lost four vessels. Great consternation prevails in Peking. The emperor is determined to take the management of affairs into his own hands. The battle took place off Galu where a Chinese squadron was covering the landing of a large force. The landing was effected with success, but in the meantime a Japanese fleet attacked the assailants. In the fighting that followed the Chinese warship Chen Yuen was sunk by the fire from the attacking fleet. The Yang Weir, also belonging to the Chinese squadron, in attempting to get out of the range of fire or in maneuvering for a position, was run aground, where it remained. One other Chinese ship is reported to have been sunk. The Japanese are also reported to have sustained a heavy loss, three of their vessels having been sunk by the fire from the Chinese. Admiral Ting and Major Hannikin are reported having been killed during the attack. No estimates are made of the losses by either side.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—A dispatch received here from Ping Yang, Corea, dated yesterday, says that every hour adds to the crushing character of the Chinese defeat. It is added that the first estimates were slightly under the actual facts and the total of the Chinese losses during the two days' battle is said to be over 17,000 men killed, wounded and prisoners.

Japanese cavalry is continuing the pursuit of the Chinese who succeeded in escaping and detachment of troops continue bringing in squads of captured Chinese.

The Chinese prisoners who were not wounded were paraded yesterday morning in a circle of Japanese troops and it was seen that they numbered 14,500. It is probable, however, that this number will be increased during the next few days by the prisoners who are being constantly brought in. Many of the Chinese captured were found hiding in the quiet portions of the city.

Besides Gen. Tso Tsak-wai, commander-in-chief of the Manchurian army, who fought desperately to the last and only surrendered when he was badly wounded, the Japanese captured four other important commanders of the Chinese forces—namely, Gen. Tso Tsak Wai, Gen. Wei Ink Wei, Gen. Nany Kow Eng and Gen. Sei Kin Lin, particularly all the effective Chinese staff. The Chinese prisoners are to be sent to Japan in batches of 1,000 on board Japanese transports now at anchor in the Ta Tung river.

The Times says: The new treaty between Great Britain and Japan fixes the duties on all articles imported into Japan exceeding an annual value of $50,000,000 at a slightly increased rate, while Japan retains the right to fix her own tariff on articles of lesser annual value. The treaty will be in force for twelve years. The abolition of foreign jurisdiction will not occur until a lapse of five years, when it is expected that the new Japanese codes will be completed and the new tribunals organized. In return for these concessions the whole of Japan will be opened to British trade and industry as soon as foreign jurisdiction is abolished. In the meantime British merchants may travel through the country and prospective arrangements for Recognized as a Civilized Nation.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—The new treaties which Japan is negotiating with the great powers, including the United States, are regarded in diplomatic circles as an event in international affairs quite as important as the Chinese-Japanese war, as the treaties will, for the first time, give official recognition to Japan as one of the sisterhood of civilized nations. The terms of the treaty with Great Britain have just been made public. A similar treaty is now being negotiated with this country, and it is expected to be second of new treaties to be signed. Then will come a like treaty with Germany and other powers.

The significant feature of this new series of treaties is that they for the first time deal with the Japanese as a civilized nation entitled to the same treaty rights as the countries of Europe or the western hemisphere. All of the Japanese treaties now existing treat her as a half-barbarous country.

BRIEF BITS OF HUMOR.

Hungry Ancestors.

In an Italian garrison there was a private soldier by the name of Ugolino. One of the officers took the soldier aside and asked him:

"Are you a descendant of the famous Count Ugolino, about whom Dante wrote?"

"No," replied the soldier, "all my ancestors were poor people."

"I refer to Count Ugolino who was starved to death with his sons in the tower of Piza."

"If he didn't get enough to eat, very likely he was an ancestor of mine, after all," replied the honest soldier.

BANDITS RUN DOWN AND PUT IN JAIL

THE GORIN, MO., ROBBERS CAPTURED BY POLICE.

Charles Abraham and Lincoln Overfield the Two Men Caught and the Former Is so Dangerously Injured That He Will Die—Details of the Crime.

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—Officials of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad in Chicago are congratulating themselves on having nipped in the bud a train robbery. In the affray with the robbers which took place near Gorin, Mo., early yesterday morning Engineer Prescott was shot, but not killed. The train which was held up was the Colorado & Utah express, which left Chicago Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock. The officials, having been apprised several days ago that the train was to be stopped by bandits, resolved to give the outlaws a warm reception, so when the engineer pulled the lever Monday in the Chicago depot he, as well as the train crew, knew there was warm work ahead. At Joliet Chief Detective Kenney and Detective G. C. Montgomery of the company got on the train. They were joined at Strator by two more men and at Galesburg J. H. Mathews boarded the train. All these special officers were armed with revolvers and in the express car were a number of Winchester rifles.

Mathews is the man who had discovered the plot to rob the train. He had found out that the robbers expected to get at least $50,000 and that the attack would be made near Gorin, Mo. Mathews told details to his partners as the train sped toward Fort Madison, Iowa. At this point the guards were joined by Division Superintendent Stockton of the Wells Fargo express company. He also brought with him four other trusty men.

Mathews had previously arranged with a spy he had placed with the bandits that the train should be stopped by a torpedo placed on the track and the spy a moment later was to flag the train. At about 2 o'clock the sheriff of Scotland county, in which Gorin is situated, got aboard; the party was now complete and the explosion of the torpedo under the wheels of the engine began to be expected.

One mile east of Gorin the rails are laid between two high embankments. As the engine stuck its headlight out of this cut the looked for explosion of the signal came. Engineer Prescott gave a sharp whistle, applied the air brakes and as the train came to a standstill in the darkness the expectant guards saw the man with the flag on the track in front and out of the brush at the side of the road came four armed men wearing masks.

"One rushed up to the engine cab and with a loud cry of 'Throw up your hands!' leveled a gun at Prescott, at the same instant pulling the trigger.

The bullet struck the engineer in the shoulder and he fell to the floor of the cab. Chief Detective Kenney jumped from the cab to the coal on the tender and thrusting his gun in the face of the man who had shot Prescott, pressed the trigger. How it was that the robber escaped having his head blown off no one seems to know, but Mr. Bandit scampered off to the woods. His reception had been too warm. Kenney's shot also scared the other emulators of Bill Dalton, stopping long enough at the edge of the woods to fire two shots each.

Engineer Prescott was taken to a farm house in Gorin, where his wound was dressed, and the train proceeded on its way to Kansas City.

A large posse immediately went in pursuit of the robbers, who were well known, a spy of the Santa Fe having been in the plot from the first. Charles Abraham, the man who shot the engineer, was found at his house in Gorin, Mo., with his entire right arm and shoulder shot to pieces. He is dying. Lincoln Overfield, his accomplice, who escaped unhurt, was captured later in the day. The rest of the gang, if there are any more implicated, will be apprehended to-day. The robbers claim McDaniel, the Santa Fe spy, led the men into the attempted robbery and then betrayed them.

FUNDS FOR FIREMEN.

Effort to Relieve Men Who Went Out in the Lehigh Valley Strike.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 19.—The convention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen is still debating the proposition to raise funds for the relief of the idle firemen who went out in the Lehigh Valley strike last year. Several plans have been considered, but no conclusion has been reached. The greater part of yesterday's session was given up to the discussion of these propositions and the consideration of committee reports. The opponents of Vice Grand Master Hanchan are working incessantly to prevent his re-election, and it looks as if they might succeed. Debs is doing all he can to prevent Hanchan's defeat.

WOMEN DIPLOMATS ARE VERY CLEVER

WIVES AND DAUGHTERS OF OUR AMBASSADORS.

Mrs. Bayard is a favorite at Windsor Castle and Orton Lodges with the Queen—Miss Ethel Washburn at the Austrian Capital.

IT IS VERY PLEASANT to know that the wives and daughters of some American ministers now abroad, filling foreign missions for their country, have met with an unusual degree of favor in their respective foreign courts. None have suffered at all by being placed within the fierce light that beats upon royalty; and nearly all have met with marked distinction, shown in various court ways.

Mrs. Bayard has been one of the most favored of all the ladies abroad. She has several times been received informally by Queen Victoria; and on occasions of festivities at Windsor she has been invited to remain over night in the castle. And with Victoria Regina this means as much as it does when you or I—wishing to be sure of the presence of a favorite guest—ask her to come early, stay all night and remain for a gossip the next day.

Mrs. Bayard is, even at home with her own people, a very quiet, reserved woman, with little American enthusiasm or ardor. Perhaps this fact, with her highly educated mind, makes her all the more acceptable to the conservative English ladies. She wears some of the smartest gowns seen at Windsor or at the smart balls of English society. Mrs. Bayard is not a young woman, although a very delightful in conversation and as entertaining as a season's belle.

Mrs. Eustis is really a pretty woman. But she is of the peculiar type of pretty women who can not take a pretty picture—you have known just such yourself. The only one Mrs. Eustis has had taken for years was on board a yacht. The occasion was a very fashionable yachting party near Paris and the inevitable snap shotter who haunts even lovely Paris thought to get a fair likeness of her with a parasol over her head. The photograph was taken, but it was even more disastrous than any of the others. Mrs. Eustis lives elegantly in the French capital.

Mrs. Theodore Runyon took to Germany a personality fitted to be much at home anywhere in the world. She combines New York birth with Moravian seminary training, among the Moravian nuns of Pennsylvania, with knowledge picked up by extensive travel in the tropics and explorations, wherever it is permitted women to travel. Mrs. Runyon and Mrs. Levi P. Fuller, wife of Vermont's governor, are said to be the most intelligently traveled woman in the world. Mrs. Runyon entertains even as much as the German minister's wife has done for several administrations and is extremely liked abroad.

Mrs. Bartlett Trigo and her daughter, Miss Washburn, were among the first ladies received when the Empress Elizabeth of Austria emerged from her retirement a year ago and began—after long mourning for her son Rudolph—to hold a limited court. The empress admired Miss Washburn and made many inquiries concerning her personality. And when told that at her own home in South Dakota, she was called "The Lily of the West," her majesty exclaimed, "How very beautiful!"

Mrs. Tripp is one of the best dressed women in the Austrian capital. One of her favorite gowns, which might indeed be called her picture dress, is of red velvet trimmed with a heavy beaded material set thick with pearls. She has adapted the Viennese styles, greatly to the pleasure of the Austrian ladies; and, like them, contrives queer and picturesque neck arrangements to harmonize with her gowns.

Miss Washburn, a very stately brunette, dresses in white on public occasions; as, although presented to the empress in a semi state, she has not yet passed through the society ordeal known as "coming out."

Mrs. W. W. Thomas, Jr., has led a life always in court circles, and its most important events have been, one might say, "social events." On her seventeenth birthday she was presented at the Swedish court—the daughter of a nobleman. On her eighteenth birthday she married an American gentleman traveling abroad, Mr. W. W. Thomas. On the day she was 20 she presented Sweden with a little Swedish-American boy, and two years from that day found her again making her bow to King Oscar, as the wife of a minister plenipotentiary. Mrs. Thomas is one of those beautiful women who go through life listening to sonnets dedicated to "My lady's eyebrow," and whose path is strewn with the fragrant flowers of adulation. The Swedish Beauty and Art Reviews teem with pictures of her and allusions to her loveliness. Her dinners are declared to be international poems.

MRS. J. S. EWING.

Mrs. Ewing, with her two daughters and son in Belgium are entertaining and being entertained more than has been customary in that country. Every week they give large dinners, and frequently they are invited into the royal families of the Belgians. Indeed, in that country the "caste" line is so rigorously drawn that the ladies must associate with nobles or with no one at all.

Miss Ruth Baker, daughter of the Minister to Nicaragua, Costa Rica and Salvador, is a young woman who, if she were in a fashionable court, would reign as one of its most renowned beauties. In Minnesota she was considered the fairest belle in a state of fair women.

Although very young—Miss Baker has seen a good deal of the world, and is her father's inseparable and loyal companion.

It has often been predicted that American ladies, subjected to the flatteries and becoming used to the homage of foreign courts, would be spoiled for life afterward in their own homes. But such has never proved to be the case! In every instance, after a four years' experience abroad as the wife of a diplomat and a friend of royalty, the American woman has come back to her native shores singing, not the strains of regret for glories left behind, but rather shouting with true American emphasis the words:

"There's no place like home!"

Electric Mail Cars in Brooklyn, N. Y. The Atlantic Avenue Railway company has recently completed at its shops, Twenty-fourth street near Fifth avenue, an electric postal car designed by the company officials, assisted by the postal authorities of Brooklyn, patterned after the standard type of postal car used on steam railroad lines.

Only half of the car will be used for postal purposes, the other half being a smoking compartment. There are pigeonholes for distributing the mails and hooks for holding the mail pouches open. Drop letter boxes are provided at each corner of this compartment.

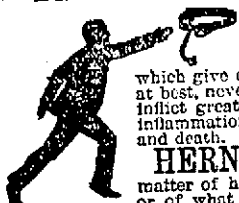

The exterior of the car presents a very handsome appearance. It is painted white, like the United States mail cars which are run on steam routes, the smoking compartment being lettered "Smoking Car." The windows are covered with wire screens. The car is mounted on a Brownell truck.

Two of these cars will go into service immediately.

Paris Exhibition of 1900.

Thirty-six projects for what is called the Clou, or main attraction, of the Paris exhibition for 1900 have been sent in to the special sub-committee. The well-known engineer, M. Armand Jeune, proposes the offering of handsome prizes for solutions of the three problems, transmission of sight to a distance, chromophotography on paper and electric lighting without focus, by cold light with the aid of electric undulations of great frequency. M. Flammarion, the astronomer, proposes a shaft showing the various geological epochs with their inhabitants, and also an arrangement by which the spectator would witness the revolution of the earth as if from the surface of the moon. M. Trouve, the electrician, advocates a luminous cascade falling from the upper platform of the Eiffel tower and also a luminous fountain rising to the same height. A bridge 100 meters, or 330 feet wide, is to be thrown across the Seine opposite the Invalides, and lined on either side with houses and shops like the old Pont Neuf and old London bridge.

Vote Was the Biggest in Years and Highest Fee Was Winner by 305—Goes Into Effect Next July and Holds Good For the Next Three Years.

Janesville has gone high license and five hundred dollars is the price that will have to be paid for the right to sell after next July. The vote was in the nature of a landslide, the advocates of low license having worked hard with carriages to keep it down to the present price, $200. This decision of the voters will be in force for three years and means much to the city and the saloon men. The total vote was 2,246 of which 1,238 were for $500; 933 for $200 and 75 for $350. The advocates of the $500 fee out numbered all competition by 305 and had 230 majority over both $350 and $200. The vote in detail was:

THE VOTE ON LICENSE.
 The first chance Janesville has had to give its opinion of democratic legislation came yesterday. The vote left no doubt as to what that opinion is.

By three electing mayors pledged to collect the double license the voters of the city had practically established $400 as the sum to be paid. Not once but three times they had voted on the question and said $400 was none too much. They had settled it as far as any community might settle it. Wholly without justification the democratic legislature interfered. This body, with one man chosen from Janesville and 133 from other parts of the state—one man familiar with Janesville interests and 133 ignorant—saw fit to overturn the work of three thousand voters and say that these three thousand were mistaken in thinking they wanted the $400 license. Local self government was refused and the intention of the community thwarted for partisan ends.

That nothing was gained by that move time has shown.

The bosses thought by avoiding all contention as to license to elect a democratic mayor. John Thoroughgood defeated Richard Valentine the same as O. D. Rowe had done but two years before.

They declared that $300 was the highest license for which Janesville would vote. Before the legislature began its tinkering this may have been true. Yesterday's vote showed that it is true no longer.

Outside interference in local affairs is not relished. The bosses would have profited had they learned the lesson two years ago.

NOW IT'S THE RAGGED SHIRT.
 S. S. Barney, the republican candidate for congress in the Sheboygan district, hit the nail square on the head a night or two ago when addressing the Milwaukee Young Men's Republican Club. Said he: "There is no waving of bloody shirts in this campaign, but thousands of needy men all over the country are waving ragged shirts, and those who want whole ones know that the way to get them is to restore republican rule."

Economy being the argument made by democrats in favor of Hogan's election they will doubtless prove their sincerity by turning as one man and supporting the prohibition nominee. He agrees to board tramps for $1350, just $150 less than Hogan's bid. The day that democrats prove their determination to support Bassett republicans will feel they ought to go at least half way down the sale-and-barter ladder and support Hogan.

Democracy has changed indeed if the Hogan proposition is upheld. Democracy's unbroken rule for thirty years has been to dispose of votes and offices alike to the highest and not to the lowest bidder.

The Beloit Free Press thinks that "half starving prisoners isn't a business the republicans of Rock county want to be a party to." It also remarks: "When the only qualification for office is the lowest bid, the time has come to abolish the office as well as the bidder."

The Madison Journal refers to Janesville's hero-politician as "General Doe, the gleam of those brass buttons has more than once caused Madison maidens to write poetry and strong men to feel that with him they could march to horrid death for country."

Very few democrats are heard insisting that the office of governor should be let to the lowest bidder.

OFFICIAL FIGURES
SHOW UP THE LIES

THE FALSE CLAIMS OF DEMOCRATS EXPOSED.

Increased Expense In All Departments of the State Government—Nearly All the Money Received From ex-State Treasurers Squandered—Clerks at Double Pay.

At the state convention of Republican leagues held in Milwaukee the 19th inst., Hon. E. A. Taylor, of Madison, made a speech relating to the management of state affairs by the present administration. He denied that economy had been practiced, and asserted that the most reckless extravagance had prevailed, and he cited the figures from the secretary of state's reports to prove the absolute truth of his assertions. He took in detail the leading items in the expense accounts of the last three years of republican rule, 1888, '89, '90, and the three completed years of democratic rule, 1891, '92, '93. These figures show an enormous increase of expenses by the democrats in every department of the state government. He completely exploded the ludicrous claim of democratic economy by simply comparing the expense accounts of the two administrations. He showed beyond controversy that the reduction of the state tax levy this year, was not owing to money saved, but to an extraordinary income, which was never before and will never hereafter be received. The figures presented by Mr. Taylor, and they are all taken from the official records, and their correctness therefore undeniable, show beyond the possibility of controversy that the democrats, instead of practicing economy as they claim to have done, have increased expenses hundreds of thousands of dollars, squandering nearly the whole amount received from the ex-treasurers. We subjoin a few extracts from Mr. Taylor's speech:

I stand here to say to you, Mr. Chairman and gentlemen, and to the tax payers of the state, that this administration has never saved the people a single dollar. On the contrary, the undisputed figures of the public records show that it has been characterized by extravagance and waste rather than by care and economy. Every department of the state government, barring the secretary of state's office, has expended more money under three years of democratic rule than was ever expended by the same departments under three years of republican rule. All of the state penal and charitable institutions, such as the hospitals for the insane, the schools for the deaf and blind, etc., have cost more under democratic than they ever cost under republican rule. The members of the board of control, and regents of normal schools and other officers have been allowed larger expense accounts under democratic than under republican rule. It has been the same story everywhere, in every branch of the state government.

Now, before I present to you the official figures of expenses incurred respectively by the republican and democratic administrations to substantiate the statements which I have made, I wish to call attention to the unfairness and mathematical jugglery employed by the democrats to deceive the people. In the first place they compare the state tax levy of this year, when owing to a large and unusual income there is a great amount of money on hand, and so only a small tax is required, with the tax of 1890, when there was no money on hand, and the usual tax levy was necessary. This is simple trickery.

This comparison they make is a very transparent fraud. But the most monstrous effrontery is the pretension that the money in the treasury has accumulated there as the result of democratic economy. It has come, not a dollar of it, from reducing expenses, but from an extraordinary income. The democrats have not by exercising economy, paid out less money than did the republicans, but from unusual sources they have received more. This extra money came from the ex-treasurers, $327,902.55; the refunding of the direct war tax, $89,400.10; the interest on deposits, $46,044.78; and increased receipts from the railroads and other corporations, $570,000. The total of these unusual amounts received in the last two years is largely in excess of the money now in the treasury, $742,570.00. Had not these extra amounts been received, the tax levy for this year would have been fully up to the average for the past three years of democratic control, and much larger than the average under the last years of republican rule.

Mr. Taylor then submits the following figures, taken from the published reports of the secretary of state, showing the comparative expenses under three years each of republican and democratic rule:

State Hospital for the Insane: Expenses, 1888, $103,824.19; 1889, $82,813.44; 1890, $105,073.15. Total for last three republican years, $293,312.78. Expenses, 1891, $101,167.47; 1892, $96,436.14; 1893, $113,333.44. Total for three democratic years, $310,937.05. Democratic increase, $18,624.27.

Northern Hospital for the Insane: Expenses, 1888, $110,810.20; 1889, $118,006.49; 1890, $105,073.15. Total for last three republican years, $333,913.84. Expenses, 1891, $120,583.23; 1892, $118,904.81; 1893, $114,093.59. Total for three democratic years, $353,581.63. Democratic increase, $23,970.70.

School for Blind: Expenses for 1888-0-90, the last three republican years, $64,073.13. For 1891-2-3, last three democratic years, $82,420.18. Democratic increase, $18,347.05.

School for Deaf: Expenses for 1888-0-90, $120,230.06. For 1891-2-3, $112,804.69. Democratic increase, $7,424.37.

Industrial School for Boys: Expenses for 1888-0-90, $140,553.42. For 1891-2-3, $168,334.50. Democratic increase, $27,781.08.

State Public School: Expenses, 1888-0-90, $110,553.27. For 1891-2-3, $130,730.59. Democratic increase $19,847.32.

Net expenses by the democrats for three years, in excess of expense by the republicans, $101,110.03. Rather a remarkable manifestation of economy. I leave the state prison out of the comparison, as nearly all its expenses are paid by the convict labor. It has cost the state only about $25,000 for the past three years.

Our democratic friends may seek to explain these very embarrassing figures by claiming that the state is growing, that these public institutions are growing also, and therefore it costs more now than it did a few years ago to maintain them. This is not the fact. The average number of inmates in our charitable and penal institutions was no larger during the years 1891-2-3 than for the three previous years. Here are the figures taken from the official returns of the board of control having charge of the institutions. In the state hospital the average number of inmates for the years 1888-0-90 was 486; for the years 1891-2-3, 525. In the northern hospital, average number of inmates for 1888-0-90, 630; for the years 1891-2-3, 627. In the school for the blind the average for 1888-0-90, 83, for the years 1891-2-3, 88. School for the deaf and dumb, average for 1888-0-90, 193; for 1891-2-3, 175. Industrial school for boys, average for 1888-0-90, 391; for years 1891-2-3, 345. State school, average for 1888-0-90, 193; for 1891-2-3, 240. Taking them altogether it will be seen that the average has not increased.

For clerk hire in the state offices the republicans expended for the years 1888-0-90, $137,810.97. The democrats expended in the years 1891-2-3, $165,339.28. Democratic increase, $27,528.31.

For labor about capitol, the republicans expended for the years 1888-0-90, $130,675.05. The democrats expended in 1891-2-3, $141,946.62. Democratic increase, $11,271.57.

For transient laborers the republicans expended in the years 1888-0-90, $9,922.49. The democrats expended in the years 1891-2-3, $32,114.01. Democratic increase, $22,191.52.

This is but a partial showing. As I have said, I have omitted many items, which if included would largely swell the aggregate. But taking only these it appears that the democrats, instead of practicing economy as they agreed to do and now falsely pretend that they have done, have, as a matter of fact, expended, in excess of what the republicans expended in the same time and for the same purpose, the prodigious sum of $238,802.64.

Were there to be added to this the increase in the other items which I have omitted, the total would be more than $300,000, or nearly as much as has been thus far received from the ex-state treasurers. So it appears that after all the bluster about the treasury suits, that the tax payers have received little benefit from them, as the democrats have squandered in other directions nearly as much as they have recovered from the treasurers. This is precisely what the figures show.

MR. MINER REFUSED TO SERVE LONGER

RETIRE AS TREASURER OF THE STATE FAIR.

M. R. Doyon Was Chosen To Succeed Him But Only After He Was Assured Positively By Mr. Miner that He Was Not a Candidate For the Position.

After seventeen years of faithful service in which he has discharged the duties of his office in an exceptionally business like manner Hon. Cyrus Miner retires from the board of officers of the Wisconsin State Agricultural society and is succeeded by M. R. Doyon, the Madison banker, who consented to be a candidate only after Mr. Miner had positively declined a reelection. Mr. Miner has handled thousands of dollars for the society and there has never been a difference of even one cent in the balance of his books. In retiring Mr. Miner made a farewell address in which he said:

"While declining to be a candidate for reelection, I cannot permit the present opportunity to pass without begging the privilege of saying a few words personal to myself. I trust you will not deem me vain and boastful in what I may say, as I certainly have no thought of the kind. Seventeen years ago at an annual meeting of this society, a committee was appointed to nominate its officers. The adopting of the report of that committee made me your treasurer. From that to the present time the formality of balloting for treasurer has been dispensed with, and I have been re-elected each succeeding year virtually by acclamation, without any solicitation or effort upon my part. To say that I deeply appreciate your action, and do tender to you my sincere, hearty thanks for the confidence you have reposed in me, but feebly expresses my sentiments. I have endeavored faithfully to perform the duties devolving upon me, to carefully and honestly handle your funds, to do all that would in my judgment tend to advance the interests of our society, whether to your satisfaction or the reverse, you must be the jury. It is a source of satisfaction to me to be able to state that during that time nearly $600,000 of your money has passed through my hands, and I have no recollection or knowledge of the loss of a dollar, excepting a trifling amount only of counterfeited money taken at the gates. I consider this a remarkable record, taking into account the risks and dangers that have surrounded me at every state fair. It is a record that affords me much pleasure, and one of which I am proud.

"I confess to a shade of sadness as I see many, very many of those with whom I have associated, and around whom cluster pleasant memories of the past, and realize that those relations must now diverge. I can say truthfully in extending the parting hand, that I have none but the kindest feelings for each and every member with whom I have been brought in contact; that I will retain a lively interest in all that pertains to the welfare of our society, and will never forget the manifold acts of courtesy and good will shown to me so long as reason asserts its way, and my heart continues to beat."

The Sentinel pays Mr. Miner a compliment by saying: "A notable feature of the meeting was the retirement of Cyrus Miner, who for seventeen years has been the treasurer of the society, and whose long and useful service to the society is deeply appreciated by its members."

T. J. Flemming, of North Greenfield, was elected secretary to succeed T. L. Newton, although E. B. Heimstreet made a good showing.

KELLOGG WON MANY FAIR PRIZES.

The State Show Netted Him Twenty-Four Premiums Yesterday.

George J. Kellogg won an even two dozen premiums at the state fair yesterday, getting six awards on fruits and flowers and eighteen prizes on grapes. Hadden, Scott and Mount also did well, they receiving an additional first premium, the blue ribbon being tied on their representative in the class for English shire of four years and over in age. Janesville people seem to be getting their share of the awards.

Dance at Clear Lake.

The social dance at Clear Lake Inn to-night will be one of the best of the season. Extra efforts have been made to entertain the people. Smith's full orchestra from Janesville will furnish the music. Quite a number will attend from Janesville, and participate in the festivities.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL.

Picture swindlers are working the town and Chief Acheson is after them. A number of people complain of being beaten. Some weeks ago a canvasser was in the city soliciting pictures to be enlarged. He offered his work at a very low price, at the same time showing a very handsome and costly frame. The frame was a beautiful one and invariably caught the eye. People were led to believe that this frame would be included with the picture, and many orders were thus secured in Janesville and vicinity. Yesterday afternoon men appeared in the city to deliver the pictures and collect the money. The pictures, however, were minus the handsome frames and were inferior work. The frames could be had by paying extra high prices, and parties caught by the sharpers could not see the economy of putting such worthless pictures in such expensive frames. They refused to take the pictures, but their contracts are in the hands of the sharks and trouble is promised.

BLADON & Co., the paper box makers, have been adding some new machinery to the factory. Among the latest is a machine for turning flanges on a shoe box before the ends are put on. The machine is made by M. D. Taylor and Morris and too much credit cannot be given M. D. Taylor who has shown great ingenuity in its manufacture.

HARRY BUNDY, one of the Beloit assaulters who has been in jail here for some time awaiting trial, was taken before Judge Phelps this morning. He pleaded guilty to the charge, and was fined $25 and costs or thirty days in jail, and it is understood that he will pay the fine. He was one of the young men who were mixed up in the Ferrin case.

William Murphy's case was called this morning, when it was continued until October 8. Murphy is charged with an assault with intent to do great bodily harm. Governor Peck being in Milwaukee, she poured her story into the ears of Chief of Police Adamson, who decided that although her first statement might seem creditable, the latter was out of reason. She became somewhat composed later, and was placed aboard a train for Beloit.

CHARLES HORN FOR THE ASSEMBLY

Ex-Street Commissioner Apparently Controls the Democratic Leaders.

The Recorder appears to be taking more than usual interest in the campaign for assemblyman, but expresses no interest as to who the democratic nominee will be. 'Tis said that Charles Horn has an eye open for the place, and that he has almost a "cinch" on it. But the Recorder and its democratic friends need not worry, for the next assemblyman from this district will be a republican.

Baptists of the State Will Gather Here October 8-9, with 300 Delegates—Date Is the Same as for the Meeting of the Presbyterian Synod.

Three of the most important of ministerial gatherings that Wisconsin will see this fall are to be held in Janesville during the next three weeks. Besides the Madison convocation, which will meet here September 25-6, and will help celebrate Trinity's fiftieth anniversary, the Wisconsin Presbyterian synod will convene October 8. The same week will see Baptist pastors flock to Janesville from all parts of the state. Of the Presbyterians there will be 150 and of the Baptists nearly 300. That means a good many visitors, but they will be cared for well. This notice was given out by Dr. Hodge to-day.

Pastors, delegates and visitors to the number of three hundred are expected to be in attendance. Any families not visited by committee on entertainment who are willing to kindly open their doors to some of the guests, will confer a favor by making that fact known to A. F. Hall, chairman of the committee or to the undersigned. M. G. Hodge, Pastor of the Baptist church.

DISAGREE ABOUT THE LAKE WRECK

Two Train Crews Tell Widely Different Stories at Madison.

Janesville railroad men are a good deal interested in the outcome of the investigation of the wreck on the Lake Monona embankment at Madison. The testimony of the crews of the Northwestern and St. Paul trains which were in the wreck, has been transmitted to the head officials of the roads, and will probably be passed on by the general superintendents. Each crew agreed with the story of their respective engineers, but not with each other. The Northwestern men insisted that their train stopped at the 100-foot post, and that their train was not running more than two miles per hour while the St. Paul train was going ten or twelve miles an hour. The St. Paul crew contradicted this, and could not see how an engine going two miles an hour could pass entirely through a train of thirty-three cars going ten miles an hour.

AMES SENT TO JAIL BY EXPRESS

Lone Fisherman of Koshkonong Comes Through With His Varnish Scratched.

Ira Ames, of Koshkonong, was sent to jail by American Express, charges prepaid, this afternoon. He was the first shipment of the kind the company ever had.

Ames had been trying for several days to drink all the whisky in town. He had quite a roll of bills and seemed in a fair way to be held up and robbed. This afternoon the officers told him to go home or go to jail. Refusing to obey the first order, he was arrested and made a vicious fight. The express wagon came along just in time to serve as a patrol. Ames will be remembered as being the fisherman whose wife starved to death two winters ago in a hotel, near the lake.

Doctor—Well, Tommy, you found the pellets helped on, didn't you? Tommy—Ye sircie; I sold them to a boy for ten pence to shoot out of his new pistol.

THREE TICKET LAW STILL IN FORCE

CITY ATTORNEY NOT AFRAID OF A CONTEST.

The Cooper Measure, Providing For Australian Ballots, Does Not Cover Special License Elections, Mr. McElroy Declares—Meeting of the Personal Liberty League Last Night.

Another meeting of the Personal Liberty League was held last night to talk over the license election. The question was thoroughly discussed but as yet nothing tangible has developed. No papers have been filed and no announcement of the shape proceedings will take has been made.

City Attorney McElroy is not so mysterious. He said this morning, that he spent most of last evening examining the law in relation to voting on the license fee, and he was thoroughly convinced that the contest would amount to nothing.

"The law passed in 1885, in relation to this matter, has nothing to do with the last law or Australian system," said he. "The law of 1885 is very clear in details as to the ballots, and the Australian law does not repeal it, in fact does not allude to this law which was enacted for one special purpose. The ballots furnished by the clerks for the election on Tuesday were strictly in accordance with the law, and I believe the election was conducted as regularly as any election."

"I think the saloon men are wasting money," said a high license advocate. "The saloon men have been fussing with the license laws for a long time and now I think it is time the temperance men took the matter in hand. Perhaps a movement might be successful to place the license fee at one thousand instead of five hundred. The agitation of this license question by the saloon men may be a strong lever to gain the passage of a law allowing the people to fix the sum at any figure, leaving the minimum at five hundred dollars instead of two hundred."

PLAINEST PEOPLE HAVE LUXURIES

"HOLY COMPULSION" AS A SER-MON TEXT.

Dr. Talmage Relates Some of His Personal Experiences—Lights and Shadows
of a Christian's Life—Luxuries of the Plain People of To-Day.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 16.—Rev. Dr. Talmage, who is still absent on his round-
the-world tour, has selected for his sermon through the press for to-day:
"Holy Compulsion," the text being Luke 14: 23: "And compel them to come in."

The plainest people in our day have luxuries which the kings and queens of olden times never imagined. I walked up and down the stairs of Hollywood palace—a palace that was considered one of the wonders of the world—and I said, "Can it be possible
that this is all there was of this reputed wonderful place?" And this is the case in many other instances.
There are fruits in Westchester county and on Long Island farms
far better than the pomegranates and apricots of Bible times. Through all the ages there have been scenes of festivity, and the wealthy man of my text plans a great entertainment, and invites his friends. If one builds a beautiful home, he wants his acquaintances to come and enjoy it. If one buys an exquisite picture, he wants his friends to come and appreciate it; and it was a laudable thing
when the wealthy man of my text,
happy himself, wanted to make other people happy. And so the invitations went out; but something went very much wrong. You can imagine the embarrassment of any one who has provided a grand feast when he finds out that the guests invited do not intend to come. There is nothing that so provokes the master of the feast
as that.

Well, these people invited to this great banquet of the text made most frivolous excuses. The fact was, I suppose, that some of them were offended that this man had succeeded so much better in the world than they
had. There are people in all occupations and professions who consider it a wrong to them that anybody else is advanced. I suppose these people invited to the feast said among themselves, "We are not going to administer to that man's vanity, he is proud enough now; we won't go; beside that,
we could all give parties if we
made our money the way that man
makes his."

So when the messengers went out
with the invitations there was a unanimous refusal. One man said, "Oh, I have bought a farm, and I must go and look at it!" He was a land speculator,
and had no business to buy land until he knew about it. A frivolous excuse. Another man said, "I have bought five yoke of oxen." The probability is he was a speculator in live stock. He ought to have known about the oxen before he bought them. Beside that, if he had been very anxious to get to the feast, he could have hooked them up and driven them on the road there. Another frivolous excuse. Another man said, "Oh, I have married a wife, and I can't come,"
when if he had said to his wife, "I have an invitation to a splendid dinner; it is highly complimentary to me;
I should very much like to go; will
you go along with me?" she would have said, "To be sure I will go."
Another frivolous excuse. The fact
was that they did not want to go.

"Now," said the great man of the feast, "I will not be defeated in this matter; I have with an honest purpose provided a banquet, and there are scores of people who would like to come if they were only invited. Here,
my man, here, you go out, and when
you find a blind man, give him your arm
and fetch him in; and when you find a lame man, give him a crutch and fetch him in; and when you find a poor man, tell him that there is a plate for him in my mansion; and when you find some one who is so ragged and wretched that he has never been invited anywhere, then, by the kindest tenderness and the most loving invitation any one ever had, compel him to come in."

Oh, my friends, it requires no acuteness
on my part, or on your part, to see in all this affair that religion is a banquet. The table was set in Palestine a good many years ago, and the disciples gathered around it, and they thought they would have a good time
all by themselves, but while they sat
by the table the leaves began to grow
and spread, and one leaf went to the east and another leaf went to the west, until the whole earth was covered up with them, and the clusters
from the heavenly vineyard were filled up on the board, and the trumpets and harps of eternity made up
the orchestra, and as this wine of God
is pressed to the lips of a sinning,
bleeding, suffering, dying, groaning
world, a voice breaks from the heavens, saying, "Drink, O friends;
yea, drink, O beloved!" O blessed Lord Jesus, the best friend I ever had,
the best friend any man ever had,
was there ever such a table? Was there ever such a banquet?

From the cross uplifted high,
Where the Saviour designs to die,
What melodious sounds I hear
Bursting on the ravished ear!
Heaven's redeeming work is done,
Come, and welcome; sinners, come.

Religion is a joyous thing, I do not want to hear anybody talk about religion as though it were a funeral. I do not want anybody to whine in the prayer meeting about the kingdom of God. I do not want any man to roll up his eyes, giving in that way evidence of his sanctity. The men and women of God whom I happen to know, for the most part, find religion
a great joy. It is exhilaration to the body. It is invigoration to the mind.
It is rapture to the soul. It is balm for all wounds. It is light for all darkness. It is a harbor from all storms, and though God knows that some of them have trouble enough

now, they rejoice because they are on the way to the congratulations
eternal.

I stopped one nightfall, years ago,
at Freiburg, Switzerland, to hear the organ of world-wide celebrity in that place. I went into the cathedral at nightfall. All the accessories were favorable. There was only one light
in all the cathedral, and that a faint taper on the altar. I looked up into the venerable arches and saw the shadows of centuries, and when the organ awoke, the cathedral awoke,
and all the arches seemed to lift and
quiver as the music came under them.
That instrument did not seem to be made out of wood and metal, but out of human hearts, so wonderfully did
it pulsate with every motion; now
laughing like a child, now sobbing
like a tempest. At one moment the music would die away until you could hear the cricket chirp outside the wall, and then it would roll up until it seemed as if the surge of the sea and the crash of an avalanche
had struck the organ pipes at the same moment. At one time that night
it seemed as if a squadron of spirits
weeping up from earth had met a squadron of descending angels whose glory beat back the woe. Standing there and looking at the dim taper on
the altar of the cathedral, I said:
"How much like many a Christian's life! Shadows hover, and sometimes his hope is dim, and faint, and flickering, like a taper on the altar. But at what time God wills, the heavens
break forth with music upon his soul,
and the air becomes resonant as the
angels of God beat it with their shining scepters."

Oh, the Lord God has many fair
and beautiful daughters; but the fairest
of them all is she whose ways are pleasantness and whose paths are peace! Now, my brothers and sisters
—for I have a right to call you also—
I know some people look back on their ancestral line, and they see they are descended from the Puritans or Huguenots, and they rejoice in that; but I look back on my ancestral line, and I see therein such a mingling and mixture of the blood of all nationalities
that I feel akin to all the world, and by the blood of the Son of God, who died for all people, I address you in the bonds of universal brotherhood.
I come out as only a servant, bringing an invitation to a party, and I put it into your hand, saying, "Come, for all things are now ready," and I urge
it upon you and continue to urge it,
and, before I get through, I hope, by the blessing of God, to compel you to come in.

We must take care how we give the invitation. My Christian friends, I think some times we have just gone
opposite to Christ's command, and we have compelled people to stay out.
Some times our elaborated instructions
have been the hindrance. We graduate from our theological seminaries on stilts, and it takes five or six years before we can come down
and stand right beside the great masses of the people, learning
their joys, sorrows, victories, defeats.
We got our heads so brimful of theological wisdom that we have to stand
very straight lest they spill over. Now,
what do the great masses of the people care about the technicalities
of religion? What do they care about the hypostatic union or the difference between sub-lapsarian and supra-lapsarian? What do they care for your profound explanations, clear as a London fog? When a man is drowning he does not want you to stand by the dock and describe the nature of the water into which he has fallen, and tell him there are two parts hydrogen gas and one of oxygen
gas, within common density of thirty-nine Fahrenheit, turning to steam
under a common atmospheric pressure of two hundred and twelve. He does not want a chemical lecture on water;
he wants a rope.

On my friends, the curse of God on the church, it seems to me in this day, is metaphysical. We speak in an unknown tongue in our Sabbath
schools, and in our religious assemblages, and in our pulpits, and how can people be saved unless they understand us? We put on our official crowns, and we think the two silk
balloons flapping at the elbows of a preacher give him great sanctity. The river of God's truth flows down before us pure and clear as crystal; but we take our theological stick and stir it up, and stir it up, until we can not see the bottom. Oh, for the simplicity of Christ in all our instructions—the simplicity he practiced when standing
among the people, he took a lily, and said, "There is a lesson of the way I will clothe you;" and, pointing to a raven, said, "There is a lesson of the way I will feed you; consider the lilies—behold the fowls!"

I think often in our religious instructions we compel people
to stay out by our church architecture. People come in and they find things angular, and cold, and stiff, and they go away never again
to come; when the church ought to be a great home circle, everybody having a hymn book, giving half of it to the one next to him, every one who has a hand to shake hands, shaking hands—
the church architecture and the church
surroundings saying to the people,
"Come in and be at home." Instead of that, I think all these surroundings often compel the people to stay out. Now, let us all repent of our sins and begin on the other track, and
by our heartiness of affection, and warmth of manner, and impetration
of the Spirit of God, compel the people to come in. How shall we lead sinners to accept the Lord's invitation? I think we must certainly begin by a holy life. We must be better men, better women, before we can compel the people to come into the kingdom of Jesus Christ. There are fine essays being written in this day about science and religion. I tell you the best argument in behalf of our holy Christianity: it is a good man, a good woman, a life all consecrated to Christ. No infidel can answer it. Oh, let us by a holy example

compel the people to come in.

I read of a minister of the gospel
who was very fond of climbing among the Swiss mountains. One day he was climbing among very dangerous
places, and thought himself all alone,
when he heard a voice beneath him
say, "Father, look out for the safe path, I am following," and he looked back and he saw that he was climbing
not only for himself, but climbing for his boy. O, let us be sure and take the safe path! Our children are following, our partners in business are following, our neighbors are following, a great multitude stepping right on in our steps. O, be sure and take the right path! Exhibit a Christian example, and so by your godly walk
compel the people to come in.

I think there is also work in the way of kindly admonition. I do not believe there is a person in this house
who, if approached in a kindly and brotherly manner, would refuse to listen. If you are rebuffed, it is because you lack in tact and commonsense. But oh, how much effective work there is in the way of kindly admonition! There are thousands of men all round about you who have never had one personal invitation to the cross. Give that one invitation, and you would be surprised at the alacrity with which they would accept it.

I tell you to-day, my friends, of a great salvation. Do you understand what it is to have a Saviour? He took your place. He bore your sins. He wept your sorrows. He is here now to save your soul. A soldier, worn out in his country's service, took to the violin as a mode of earning his living.
He was found in the streets of Vienna,
playing his violin, but after a while
his hand became feeble and tremulous,
and he could no more make music.
One day, while he sat there weeping,
a man passed along and said, "My friend, you are too old and too feeble;
give me your violin," and he took the man's violin, and began to discourse
some exquisite music, and the people gathered around in larger and larger multitudes, and the aged man held his hat, and the coin poured in
and poured in until the hat was full.
"Now," said the man who played the violin, "put that coin in your pocket."
The coin was put in the old man's pocket. Then he held his hat
again, and the violinist played more sweetly than ever, and played until some of the people wept and some shouted. And again the hat was filled with coin. Then the violinist dropped the instrument and passed off, and the whisper went, "Who is
it? who is it?" and some one
just entering the crowd said,
"Why, that is Bueher, the great violinist, known all through the realm;
yes, that is the great violinist." The fact was, he had just taken that man's place and assumed his poverty, and borne his burden, and played his music, and earned his livelihood, and made sacrifice for the poor old man.
So the Lord Jesus Christ comes down,
and he finds us in our spiritual penury,
and across the strings of his own
broken heart he strikes a strain of infinite music, which wins the attention of earth and heaven. He takes our poverty. He plays our music. He weeps our sorrow. He dies our death.
A sacrifice for you. A sacrifice for me.

Oh, will you accept this sacrifice
now? I do not single out this and that man, and this and that woman.
But I say all may come. The sacrifice is so great, all may be saved.
Does it not seem to you as if heaven
was very near? I can feel its breath on my cheek. God is near, Christ is near. The Holy Spirit is near. Ministering angels are near. Your glorified kindred in heaven near. Your glorified children near. Your redemption is near.

According to the latest reports the railroads of the country have liabilities
amounting to $11,000,000,000.
Such figures are beyond human imagination. A comparison shows that the public debt at the close of the war was $2,773,236,173, less than one-third the railroad debt.

TERIBLE WEIGHT

THAT BEARING DOWN FEELING.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]
The recovery of Lucretia Osborne, Par-
nam of Fortisville, Mass., was really wonderful. She had been sick for years.

She was utterly
prostrated, and seemed beyond a
hope of cure.

Her spine, heart,
liver, and brain were
all seriously affected.

The weight of her
body upon her feet
would cause dizziness,
faintness, and
terrible pains in her back, and it was sometimes several hours before she could dress.

This woman's trouble was in her womb,
affecting her whole constitution.

She was crushed with that indescribable
feeling of bearing down, and suffered agonies
that would appal a man.

She found new life in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

She says: "I am like one raised from the dead. I was sick so long I thought I never could get well."

"The suffocating, gasping attacks and awful bearing down feeling left me, my appetite returned, and my friends wondered at my improved looks. I believe Mrs. Pinkham's remedies are a sure cure
for the misery of our sex."

HOW SHE WAS CURED

Father Donnet was a vine dresser. Working throughout the year among the vines, he had acquired the vine color of an onion. He went to Revigny now and then to put by some money that he might have a good dowry for his daughter Rosetta, a pretty lass, blond as the harvest field and as fresh as a May morn.

Rosetta had entered her eighteenth year and was much sought after. She drew some lovers by the hope of finding in her a "good match." Others she attracted by her beauty and fascination. Time lost! Rosetta only laughed at her suitors and found much to ridicule in this one and that one.

She laughed besides for that best of hearts with a young girl—that her heart was no longer her own. At a country festival she had danced several waltzes with Paolo Laurient, the son of a rich dealer in Ligny. The brown hair, large dark eyes, regular profile and caressing voice of Paolo had produced upon Rosetta an ineffable impression. His gentle and affable manners contrasted especially with the roughness of the youths of Revigny. Having received a good education, he talked with marvelous facility, and Rosetta was not slow in listening to him.

On the evening of the festival this true daughter of Eve, having lost her family voluntarily in the crowd, returned to Revigny on Paolo's arm. They were at least two hours on the way, walking slowly and compelled from time to time to pause when the wind blew too strongly beneath the great poplars which lined the avenue. They arrived at the village, which was deserted, and under the field of azure studded with stars exchanged their first kiss.

Very frequently after this Rosetta had met Paolo. Then his father had sent him to Paris to study medicine, and the lovers, exchanging vows of mutual fealty, sadly separated, and this was why Rosetta laughed at the suitors who came in handsome Paolo's absence.

For the first months after his departure he wrote regularly to Rosetta. Then the letters became more rare, with intervals of a month. Gradually they became laconic billets, scribbled, no doubt, in haste at the corner of a table in a cafe and giving evidence of growing indifference. At last they ceased entirely. Paolo had forgotten her.

It was an old story. At first Paolo had refused to take part in the diversions of his fellow students, the balls and brewery meetings. Then they teased him and accused him of having left a love in the country. This made him angry; but, being fond of pleasure, he soon decided to take his part in the play.

"After all," he said to himself, "they have reason to sneer. Why quarrel with pleasure? Leave sadness to the gray-beards and profit by the present."

"But Rosetta?" his conscience murmured. "Bah!" he thought. "She will console herself. Let her go. Perhaps she has already forgotten me. 'Lovers' oaths are quickly broken,' says the old proverb, and why should ours prove an exception to the rule?"

But Rosetta was not to be consoled. On the contrary, she suffered terribly at this abandonment and many times turned her mournful eyes toward Paris.

Several years went by. Paolo had known how to divert himself and yet steady. After having passed his examination with honor he wrote to his father for permission to establish himself in Paris. To this, however, Father Laurient could not consent. He desired his son to return immediately to Ligny and establish himself there.

"As for the repugnance you seem to manifest for your native country," he wrote, "that is not the point in question. The workshops of Ligny have made you a gentleman, and you belong to the people here. You owe a sacred debt to your country, and as sure as you are a gentleman this debt, my son, you will certainly pay."

"The deuce!" thought Paolo. "Father Laurient will be hard to convince. But I must make him yield. Besides, if I return there, I shall see Rosetta, whom, I must confess, I have treated basely. I hope she has not started a scandal to meet me at Ligny. But Father Laurient would have spoken of it if she had. I shall stay here."

Paolo's fears were groundless. Rosetta had resigned herself to the inevitable. She dared not aspire now to be Paolo's wife. Would it not be a very astonishing thing if the little Rosetta Donnet should become the bride of Dr. Laurient? There would be laughter for 10 leagues about at such a wedding. So she resigned herself without anger, without bitterness, contented, when alone, to lament silently her vanished dream, her castle of cards fallen to the earth.

She glowed pale and languid. Her relations sought in vain to discover the cause of the strange malady that lay so heavily upon her. To all their questions she said:

"It is nothing—only a little indisposition."

The Donnets, however, consulted the most celebrated physicians of the region. None of them could discover the cause of the trouble.

But some good country Rosetta had been behind Paolo and Rosetta at the time when they made their pledge of love. Father Donnet was at last informed of their betrothal. It was to him like a flash of light. He knew now what ailed Rosetta. He knew, and he could bring the remedy.

At dawn he harnessed his mare, attached her to his old carriage and departed in the direction of Ligny.

If you are not in Ligny in three days, beware of my anger.

Such was the telegram that Paolo received one morning. He knew his stern father well enough to understand that he must obey him. Evidently the old gentleman was in a rage, and it would be imprudent to trifle with him.

"On my faith, there is nothing but to resign myself," he murmured. "I must return to my country."

The next day he was in Ligny.

"At last you are here!" exclaimed Father Laurient upon his arrival. "But not of your own will. The gentlemen of the faculty may be remarkable for some things, but they seem to have little respect for paternal authority. But we will speak no more of that. Now that you are here you will allow me to present you as a future physician at Ligny, thus guaranteeing your ability."

"But, dad, I have my diploma."

"Our friends would laugh at that or at two diplomas. It is for me to assure them of your ability and for you to verify it. Well, let us learn what they think of you. You shall make with me your first round of visits."

A moment after father and son were seated side by side in a carriage which was being rapidly borne along by the vigorous horses attached to it.

Laurient smoked a cigar with an air of satisfaction. Paolo, pleased within his heart at seeing his country again, turned about to look it over.

Suddenly the carriage turned sharply into an avenue flanked by poplar trees—the avenue that Paolo had followed with Rosetta under the starlit sky. It was the road to Revigny. Yonder in the distance was to be perceived the village, with the pretty houses rising from the river's bank. At sight of a hundred tender memories awoke in the heart of the young man, and Rosetta's charming face as he had seen it last came between him and the landscape.

The carriage turned into the drive, drew up before the fifth house, and Father Laurient, checking the horses, descended to the earth.

"Your first patient is here," he said simply.

Then he pushed the cottage door open and entered. Paolo followed him into a large room upon the lower floor. A cry burst from the young man. Upon an iron bedstead, curtained with lace, Rosetta lay in a half slumber. There was an indescribable expression of sadness upon her sweet face. Beside her sat her white haired parents.

Father Laurient advanced to the bed, laying his rough, toil worn hand upon the girl's forehead.
"Rosetta, my child, arouse yourself."
The girl trembled, passed her hand over her brow as if to banish some importunate dream, and then as her dim eyes opened was stupefied to see the good face and gray whiskers of Father Laurient and to hear the worthy man say:

"I have come, Rosetta, to give your parents hope. They have consulted several physicians who comprehend nothing of what ails you. I therefore have taken the liberty of sending to Paris for a doctor, a young man of whom much good is said and whom I guarantee."
He was not able to say more just then—the words died in his throat—but, thrusting forward his son, he cried:

"Come, doctor, take her again—cure her!"

Rosetta lifted her azure eyes to the doctor, recognizing him instantly.
"You, Paolo! My Paolo! Is it you? And you have returned to me? Oh, if I could only live! You will stay near me? Oh, my Paolo, my delight! You are a doctor and will save me! In your care I shall be saved!"

The poor child was feverishly happy. Bright color showed upon her cheeks. An enchanting smile came to the trembling lips. In that moment no man who had loved her could resist her.

"Yes," said Paolo, covering her hand with kisses, "you shall be saved. I am the cause of your illness, and I will be your cure. Thank God I have arrived in time!"

Six months afterward Paolo Laurient and Rosetta Donnet were united in marriage at Revigny. The operatives of Ligny gave a great ovation to the forge master's son and his bride, so fair under her long veil. Then Father Laurient said to the old Donnets, pointing to the happy young couple:

"You recollect, Donnet, the day you came to the office to speak of the sick girl, of your Rosetta? You remember I promised you I would accomplish all?"

"Yes," responded the vine dresser, "I recollect also the old proverb, 'The word of a blacksmith is worth the oath of a king.'"

"Exactly so," said Laurient, straightening himself.

Extending toward the young couple the large hand of an honest man, he repeated:

"Exactly so, 'The word of a blacksmith is worth the oath of a king.'"

HENRIETTA CLOTH

Will Not Wear Out and Is Handsome and Stylish.

A good quality of henrietta cloth is by far the most durable, reliable and satisfactory of all materials. There is practically no wear out to it, and it is always handsome and stylish. With a little trimming of good mohair braid, this makes a dress that has more uses and gives better satisfaction than anything in the market. There is another advantage in this fabric which is a great point in its favor. It can always be matched, and even though there are but two beautiful colors these two can be put with new without quarreling.

In old times it was the custom for a woman to buy a good black silk at stated intervals. When the new one was made, the last one was taken for second best, and whatever remained of older ones made an afternoon dress or something that would combine with or trim goods of another sort, and the same may be done with a henrietta, only on an even more extensive scale.

There is nothing in the whole catalogue of fabrics that makes such an admirable stormy day dress as a high grade silk warp henrietta. The last stage of a good material may be used in this way and lined with some fabric that will not shrink, faced with goods that has seen service and will pucker in around the foot like a drawing. Finished with a black silk dust ruffle, this makes a skirt that one may go out in in all weathers and come home with the assurance of not looking like a fright. Cheap goods are worthless for rough weather, and any woman who owns a good henrietta and a fine, close woven storm serge is equipped for a battle with the elements, no matter what their fury may be.

The sketch shows a mourning gown of black henrietta trimmed with crepe. The collar and tight part of the sleeves are of crepe, and four crepe covered buttons trim the figaro jacket, while lengthwise bands of crepe mark the plaits of the skirt.

PARISIAN NOTES.

Suggestions About Gloves and Concerning the Toilet.

Parisian women are the best gloved in the world, but most of them wear 6½ or 6¾ gloves. These are not the smallest sizes for a pretty hand, but are those worn by many of the fairest of the sex nevertheless, for a tight glove is a perfect abomination. It makes the hand look larger instead of smaller.

When tired, warm and weary after a day's outing, do not plunge the face in cold water, expecting to be refreshed, or you will be more than disappointed. After the first cooling contact with the water the flesh will smart and burn more uncomfortably than ever. Instead of soothing the overheated skin, cold water acts as an irritant, whereas tepid or hot water produces a contrary and desirable effect. After removing the dust and cleansing the pores thoroughly a buttermilk rub will heal, whiten and keep the skin tissues in a healthy condition. The sun glaring on hot brick and mortar and hot dusty pavements is very hard on the eyes. Bathing the eyes in tepid rainwater and eyewash or diluted extract of witch hazel will allay inflammation and rest them wonderfully.

The Marie Antoinette fichu is very popular in Paris, especially with taffeta poplins. It ties at the back, with long ends falling on the skirt, and is made either of net and edged with lace or of glace silk and trimmed with ruffles.

A new sleeve is shown in the cut. The lower part is of guipure, the puff of accordion plaited goods. A guipure cap is placed over the puff, and that again is surmounted by a box plaited capulet lined with silk.

A Good Laundry Bag.

Striped awning cloth makes a good strong laundry bag. If it is to be much in evidence, make it square and put a ruffle around it. Let the flap be nearly half as deep as the bag and pointed, fastening with a big pearl button, and ruffled. Across the back of the bag, at the top, sew a band of the goods, and to this put four loops to hang it up by.

GEN. EZETA'S ROMANCE WAS PICTURESQUE

WOODED AND WON AN AMERICAN GIRL.

But When She Heard of His Private Life She Repeated Her Action and Is Now Congratulating Herself—Lucky Miss Wright.

INCE THE ARRIVAL in this country of Gen. Antonio Ezeta, the interest in the romance of his life, when he lost his heart to one of the belles of this country and for a time forsook the rude trade of war to worship at the shrine of Venus, has been revived.

Miss Ida Dent Wright, Jr., whose blue eyes wrought such sad havoc with the susceptible general, is 22 years old, and was born in Atlanta, Ga. Her father, Hon. Isham G. Wright, was a well-known lawyer, who before his death entered the Methodist ministry and was a power

GEN. EZETA.

In the church. Her mother, Mrs. Marie Robinson Wright, was left a widow with a son and daughter to bring up, and adopted journalism as a profession. Mrs. Wright's work carried her on several occasions to Mexico and Central and South America, and on one of her trips she was accompanied by her daughter, who had just left the convent in Paris where she was educated. Miss Wright was an exceptionally beautiful girl of the blonde type, with blue eyes and golden hair and a figure which Juno might envy, and when she met Gen. Ezeta at one of the President's levees he fell desperately in love with her at first sight. With the impulsiveness of his southern nature he proposed marriage at once. Miss Wright, thinking he was joking, accepted him laughingly and thought no more about it at the time. When she and her mother left the palace that night the general escorted them to their carriage in person, and begged to be allowed to call the next day on the fair American belle.

True to his promise Gen. Ezeta made his appearance in full uniform at the hotel where Mrs. Wright and her daughter had apartments and formally asked for the young lady's hand. He declared that he would never marry unless Miss Wright would consent to be his wife.

Such precipitate love making was rather novel to the American ideas of Miss Ida and her mother, but there was no doubt as to the genuine devotion of the general and his serious intentions. From a worldly point of view the match was brilliant. The general was in the zenith of his military glory, the idol of his troops, rich, courtly and handsome. He was also the vice-president of the republic, with every probability of succeeding to the presidency, and the government seemed to be stable and prosperous. The more the American girl saw of Antonio the more she admired him, and finally returned the affection which he held for her. Mrs. Wright was prevailed upon to give her consent and the day was set. Mother and daughter went to Paris and a magnificent trousseau was ordered, while Gen. Ezeta furnished the future home of his accepted bride with regal splendor.

"The course of true love," etc., was exemplified in this affair. Gen. Ezeta, long before he ever dreamed of political power, while yet so poor that he was living for the most part on borrowed money, had been living with a native woman, and by her had several children. Her he forgot in his days of prosperity, and she became determined to be revenged. She informed Miss Wright of the relations which she sustained with Ezeta, and the American girl's Yankee spirit asserted itself at once. She broke off the engagement and her mother approved her action. Ezeta was broken-hearted, and during the civil war which resulted in the overthrow of his party recklessly rushed into the thickest of the fray, and his disregard for his life astonished even his own fearless soldiers. Miss Wright returned him all of the magnificent presents which he had showered upon her, including over $10,000 worth of diamonds. The general, however, begged her to keep them, and she still has them.

In view of the disastrous fortunes of the Ezetas, Miss Wright has cause to congratulate herself upon the breaking off of the match. Had she married Antonio her position now would be very trying, as the wife of the fugitive from the revengeful victors. Notwithstanding the fact that all ties are broken between them, Miss Wright has done everything in her power to aid her ex-lover, even having gone personally to President Cleveland to intercede for his safety. It is not improbable that Miss Wright will go to San Francisco while Ezeta is there, as rumor says that she regards him more in his fallen fortunes than she ever did in his palmy days.

CAT GOES FISHING.

San Francisco Has a Feline That Loves Water Sport.

Cats as a rule don't like water, but an Italian fisherman named Michael, who lives in San Francisco, has a large Maltese named Joe that loves water as much as other cats love a rug in front of a grate fire. Michael has one of those lantern-rigged boats, and goes fishing in the usual way, except that he takes Joe along. While the boat is on the way to the fishing-grounds Joe lies still and doesn't mind how wet he gets or how much the little craft pitches about. But when the seine with its load of wriggling fish is hauled in Joe's fun commences. He is most anxious to get hold of the largest, and will often jump into the net before it is landed. When a big rockcod is thrown on to the deck the cat is in its glory. He will run around and attempt to shake it as he would a mouse. The fish spreads out its wings and opens its mouth and Joe gives it a twist by the tail that causes it to turn a dozen somersaults. Then the pair will roll over and over together and the fishermen become convulsed with laughter at the unusual sight. The cat gets wet and covered with scales, and possibly gets pricked several times with the spines of the fish, but seems to enjoy the sport. When the fish is almost dead from being out of its natural element, Joe seems to think it is all his doing, and that he has really killed it in a pitched battle. He then waits for another fish from the deep and repeats the performance.

The Mink and the Duck.

Thomas Hennessy, of Whitneyville, Maine, while recently haying in the meadow, heard a fluttering in the brook, and upon investigation found a mink holding a duck under water near some overhanging alders. He made a splash on the water and the mink abandoned the duck, which came to the surface and feebly tried to swim. The fowl was easily caught, soon expired from a wound in the neck. Mr. Hennessy placed the duck upon the grass within a few feet of his work, and while yet meditating upon the prospects of a rich stew from his unexpected capture his attention was again called by the agitation of the water. He turned in season to see the mink in full possession of his bird. The thief was hotly pursued, but he hung to his prey and dexterously evaded every effort at capture, and finally mysteriously disappeared from view.

"HOSS FANS" READY FOR A WEEK'S SPORT

STATE FAIR RACES ARE OF INTEREST NOW.

As Nearly the Same Field of Flyers Will Be Here—Dolly H. Forces Milton Out in Three Fast Heats—The Results Reported From Other Towns.

Much interest in Janesville centers on the Milwaukee races, as most of the horses who are competing there, will be here next week. For the same reason, Bower City "hoss cranks" are keeping close watch of other trotting events to see if they can get a "tip" in advance of what some horse who will start here can do.

Janesville horses set the pace at Milwaukee yesterday, E. F. Carpenter's Dolly H., winning the first heat in the 2:31 trot and forcing the winner, Milton, out in the next three, making him trot in 3:18. John C. Chadwick had Kate Phallamont in the race and she sold favorite but could not win. The race between Dolly and Milton was very close, the Janesville horse being beaten only by an eyebrow in every heat which caused the crowd to cheer. Dolly got second money and Kate Phallamont got fourth. Glenmore, Garnishee and Bezan also competed and the whole field will meet again here next week in the 2:30 class.

The 2:32 pacing race was won by Lizzie Mack, a horse who is not entered here, but Toxie R., who won second money; Henry H., Peerless, Basel Cossack and Franklin G., who were competitors, will be in the Janesville 2:34 class.

Two Strike Couldn't Win.

Two Strike, the grey pacer who won a heat in the Janesville free-for-all, was in the 2:12 pacing class at Galesburg, yesterday; but Soal, Vassar and Doc Sperry were too fast for him, and all Fullagar could do was to get his entrance money back.

Two horses who made good showings here were turned down at Tiffin, Ohio, yesterday. Tod Crook, who won the 2:30 pacing purse here in 2:18, won fifth place in 2:11, and Norvin G., who won a heat in the 2:28 class here was behind the money in the 2:25 class.

Wheeler F., the pacer who won the 2:15 purse here in 2:13, did the same thing at Rockelle, Ill., yesterday except that he only had to go in 2:15.

Possell, the Land Pilot gelding, who won the 2:34 class purse here in 2:18, was ahead of them all at Dubuque yesterday, beating St. Louis and Molle Sprague, both of whom were in the 2:16 class here. The best time was 2:16.

Choral, the bay C. H. Clay filly, owned by O. J. Phelps, who got seventh place in the three-year-old-three-minute pacing class here last June, has developed plenty of speed since then. Here she was next to the last in 2:21, but yesterday at Dubuque she won the 2:15 pacing purse in three straight heats the best time being 2:15.

Stout String at Dubuque.

Miner, a bay horse by Nutwood, who got third money in the 2:28 class trotting, did the same thing at Dubuque, but the time was a record or so faster, 2:18. Carrie W., who was handled by the same driver, Kelly, on the Janesville track last June, got fourth money in the 2:30 pacing class, while here she won second prize in the 30 class by winning a heat. Mesacram, who is handled by Possell's driver, Fitch, was in the same race and won a position lower than Carrie. He started in the 19 class, here.

Jennie Toombs, owned by William Stone of Clinton, and driven by Joe Bassett in a Janesville race last June started at Warren, Ill., yesterday and got third money. The best time was 2:30. The mare got third place in 2:24 here.

Jack Riley who won the 30 trotting class purse here in 2:22 won third prize at Green Bay yesterday in 2:30, he being defeated by Prairie Lily, a colt that was entered here last June but did not start.

Janesville horsemen are much interested in the match race between John E. Gentry, 2:03, and Joe Patchen 2:04, which will come off a Galesburg next Saturday.

A Musical Dinner Service.

By way of a London paper it is learned that an American woman has lately received what must be termed the most original of wedding presents. It is a musical dinner service of which each plate begins to play a tune when put upon the table. The soup plates are accented with marches as suiting the temper of the guests at that moment of solemnity, but as the dinner progresses and the wine and courses do their enlivening work, the harmonies brighten accordingly, till at dessert the covers are ringing out the maddest of polkas and galops.

WHAT HE'S GOT.

The Difference Between the Senator and the Congressman.

"Once upon a time," remarked a story-telling congressman, "I happened to be doing some campaign speaking with the senator from my state, and one of our engagements was at a small town considerably off the main highway and at a place where I thought a United States senator would be a nine days' wonder, not to say anything about what a plain member of congress might be. We were objects of more or less remark, I am free to confess, and I was feeling rather proud of the combination until I happened to overhear a conversation. I didn't intend to listen, but it happened that several women who had come to hear the speaking met in the hall right in front of my door, and of course the speakers of the day were the topic of conversation.

"Which one's the senator?" asked one.

"That un that's got the whiskers," replied another.

"He don't look like he knewed any more than I t'other," was the next comment.

"I reckon he don't," said the third; "neither one don't seem to have any to spare in case they had to sheer it."

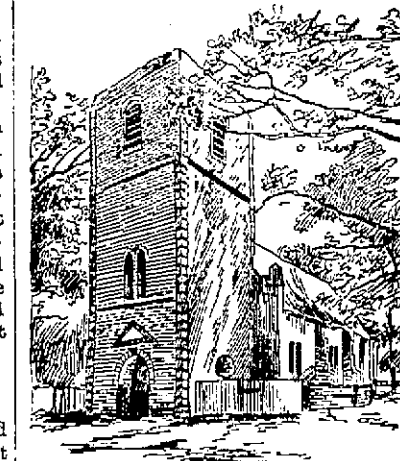

"How does he git to be senator ef he don't know more'n the congressman?" asked the third.

"Huh!" sniffed the other, "tain't what a senator knows that makes him a senator; it's what he's got," and then I made a noise to let them know that they must not be giving away state secrets, and the way they went down the hall was a caution."

BUILT IN 1632.

An Old Brick Church in Wight County, Virginia.

In 1632, twenty-five years after the landing of the English colonists at Jamestown, in Virginia, there was built a brick church in Smithfield, Isle of Wight county. This was one of the first substantial churches built in America, and is to-day the oldest Protestant church standing on this continent. Until the early part of this century it was known as the Old Brick church, and that fact strongly implies the genuineness of its antiquity. The neighborhood tradition that the church was built in the year before mentioned, and the traditions of the families resident in the district for many generations corroborate this. Recently the date of its building has been settled beyond doubt by the discovery of bricks in the walls bearing the date 1632. The church was in regular use from then until 1830, six generations of Virginians having attended services there. About that time it was thought to be too far from the center of the local population, and another church was built. The population has again become thick about the old church, and when the building shall have been restored and repaired

THE OLD BRICK CHURCH.
